Chant engravings done in Gregorio (http://home.gna.org/gregorio/) This book was engraved, typeset and designed by Steven van Roode, Breda, the Netherlands.

Cover art: A page from a 15th c. gradual by Francesco di Antonio del Chierico (b. 1433, d. 1484, Firenze). The manuscript is an illumination of the chant Ad te levavi, the Introit for the First Sunday of Advent. In the initial letter is shown King David, the primary author of the Book of Psalms.

INTRODUCTION

Why Propers

This book provides music for the propers of the Mass, which are integral to the structure of the liturgy and which have been sung since the earliest centuries. The entrance, offertory, and communion chants in this book are for use in the ordinary form of the Roman Rite. The translations of the antiphons found in this collection are from the Gregorian Missal as published by Solesmes, and the Psalms verses are taken from the Revised Grail Psalter. You can find these texts in Latin in their Gregorian musical setting in the Graduale Romanum.

How important are the propers in the ordinary form of the liturgy? In 1969, the Vatican’s Consilium that released the new Mass in the ordinary form was asked a question about the old prohibition of singing of propers at Low Masses with hymns: The unambiguous answer came back: “That rule has been superseded. What must be sung is the Mass, its Ordinary and Proper, not ‘something’, no matter how consistent, that is imposed on the Mass ... To continue to replace the texts of the Mass ... is to cheat the people.”

This is why the General Instruction on the Roman Missal (GIRM) speaks of adding decorum to the processions (entrance, offertory, and communion) by singing the “chants proper to them” (44). “After the people have gathered, the Entrance chant begins” (47). “The procession bringing the gifts is accompanied by the Offertory chant, which continues at least until the gifts have been placed on the altar” (74). “While the priest is receiving the Sacrament, the Communion chant is begun” (87).

If we are to grant chant pride of place at Mass (41), the propers of the Mass clearly need greater attention. As Cardinal Ratzinger wrote in The Spirit of Liturgy, “the biblical and liturgical texts are the normative words from which liturgical music has to take its bearings.” However, despite the frequent mention of Mass propers in many documents, there has been a surprising dearth of resources available to sing the propers in English, which is a step toward singing the Mass instead of just singing at Mass.

The Simple English Propers provides music for the full liturgical action of these processions for singers who have not previously sung Mass propers. They are designed to be used without accompaniment. They are flexible enough to be sung by a cantor alone or by a large choir that can sing in unison in two octaves or be divided into high voices and low voices. The people are free to join in but this is not necessary, for the propers of the Mass belong primarily to the choir.

The Structure

The singing structure is as follows. Begin with the antiphon (that’s the opening text and melody). A cantor intones the antiphon up to the asterisk (*) and then the rest of the choir or section continues. Antiphons without an asterisk are intended to be sung by a cantor alone the first time with the choir repeating the entire antiphon thereafter. If desired, antiphons with asterisks can also be sung in full by a cantor with the choir or section then repeating the entire antiphon. Then the first psalm verse is sung, which is followed by a repetition of the antiphon by the choir or section. Continue this alternation between the antiphon and psalm as needed to cover the liturgical action, and end with the antiphon. The “Glory be” on the entrance and communion, which may be sung as the final verse, is traditional but optional.

How to Sing the SEP

To best way to begin singing the Single English Propers is to first speak the text by itself. Chant is a solemn proclamation of a liturgical text first, ennobled by song. But if the text is unclear or proclaimed in an overly affected way, it can become imbalanced and its presentation will elude its purpose. As the singers speak the text, they should be conscious of the words and syllables that receive emphasis. The same words and syllables should receive emphasis when sung. Remember that not all words and syllables are emphasized in speech and the same is true in chant. Each phrase should begin with a slight acceleration and crescendo and end with a natural relaxation and ritard, just as in speech.

The melodies in the Simple English Propers employ the Gregorian modes (modes are the medieval way of organizing scales). There are eight different modes in Gregorian chant. Each one has a special sound and mood. The SEP preserves the mode in which the Latin chants of the Graduale Romanum are composed. The antiphons in this collection have been based upon a total of 24 melodic formulas, or melodic models. There is a different formula for each mode in each type of chant, whether entrance, offertory, or communion. These formulas are specially adapted to the needs of each antiphon. No one melody is exactly the same, but after learning a few antiphons in the same formula, you will begin learning similar ones quickly and intuitively.

Modes sound different from modern scales. They are more nuanced, gradated, and interesting than our modern sense of major and minor. To understand the melody, look at the clef on the left side of each barline. The clef is the compass that allows you to know where the half steps and whole steps fall and, from there, to sing the melody. For this reason, the clef should be kept constantly in mind as you are singing. It is all you need to know the pitches of the melody.

There are two types of clefs: the C clef (or Do clef) and the F clef (or Fa clef). The C clef looks like a C and “clamps” the note for C or Do on the staff. The F clef is the other one that seems to have a note in front of it (it looks something like a stylized F) and it marks the pitch F or Fa.

\[ \text{Fa-clef} \] marks Fa on the staff

\[ \text{Do-clef} \] marks Do on the staff

Just as with the C and F on the keys of a piano or in any scale, the distance of a half step separates that note marked by the clef from the space below (which is a B or an E, depending on the clef). The remainder of the scale follows from here just as on the piano. This can be easily played on the white keys of the piano. Or it can be sounded out using Do Re Mi syllables (most people know Do Re Mi from the movie “The Sound of Music”).

The beauty of the four-line staff (instead of the modern five line staff) is that it presents all you need for singing (the five-line staff is only essential for instruments). In addition, the Do doesn’t have to be fixed on C. It can be any pitch you choose, provided you preserve the relationships between the notes that follow. This allows for total flexibility, in effect permitting any chant to start on any pitch.

Most chants in this volume use a scale that falls mostly below the clef. This allows you to find the scale and the starting pitch by first sounding a Do or Fa and moving downward: Do – Ti – La – Sol – Fa, or Fa – Mi – Re – Do. If you are looking for a quick mental recall, think of “Joy to the World.” This tune begins with this descending scale exactly. This one simple step will orient you in where the half steps and whole steps are. (There is only one accidental in chant: the Bb or the Te.)

The notes and groups of notes (“neumes”) used in this book are few. The single square note (“punctum”) applies to word syllables and follow the pattern of speech. There are also groups of two different notes stacked on one syllable ("podatus"). The lower note is sung first. If the notes go from higher to lower on a single syllable, they can be written as a “clivis.” There are also groups of three moving notes on one syllable ("torculus” and “porrectus”). The melodic shape of these notes follows the rising and falling direction of the notes (the “porrectus” is not slurred, despite its appearance).

punctum

a single note

---

podatus (pes)

bottom note sung first

---

torculus

three notes sung consecutively

---

clivis

higher note sung first

---

porrectus

three notes, the first two at either end of the diagonal

Notes with a line over them ("episema") receive a slight lengthening, and the dotted notes that occur at the ends of phrases are held slightly longer in order to help bring them to a natural conclusion.

There are five division markers that are used in chant notation and in the SEP. These look something like bar lines in modern music, but they serve a very different purpose. Their purpose is to help break up the text according to its grammatical structure and to provide breaks or pauses in the melody, just as it would be spoken.

The largest division mark is the double bar (♯) which is found only at the end of an antiphon or at a conclusive division of a chant. The double bar indicates a complete stop in the music. If verses are sung after the double bar, a pause of a few seconds should be observed before proceeding on. The second division is the whole bar (\(\frac{3}{2}\)) which marks the end of complete phrases in a chant. The whole bar usually coincides with a period in the text, and a substantial rhetorical pause should be observed, just as in speech. The third division is the half bar (\(\frac{1}{2}\)) which breaks the text of a chant at intermediate pauses. The pause at the half bar is brief and shorter than a whole bar, and a breath should always be taken. The fourth division is the quarter bar (\(\frac{1}{4}\)) which is the equivalent of a musical comma. The quarter bar divides “sense units” in the text. Sometimes a breath is needed and sometimes not. A very brief pause should be taken at the quarter bar and the musical line should not be interrupted but carry on in a flowing manner. The final division is called the articulation mark (\(\cdot\)) which is properly not really a division mark at all, but indicates a need for a very slight break in the sound; a “sliver of daylight”. The articulation mark is NOT A BREATHE MARK, despite its appearance, and a breath should never be taken for it. All that is needed is a very quick and delicate break in the music, as we often break in a similar way in speech. If the articulation mark presents problems for beginning singers or choirs it may be better ignored.

How to Sing the Psalm Verses

The psalm tones are based on Gregorian tones and are crafted to work seamlessly with the English language. The Psalm tones are found at the end of each antiphon. The psalm text is “pointed” to permit the easy application of the tone.

The psalm tones consist of two musical lines, which are separated by a barline. The first part of the tone is sung to the first line of a psalm verse, which concludes with an asterisk. The second part of the tone is sung to the text that follows the asterisk. After both parts of the tone are sung the tone is repeated in this fashion as needed.
The beginning of a verse is sung on the white note, called the reciting tone. The italicized words or syllables at the end of a line of text coincide with the changing notes at the end of the tone, called the termination. The bold word or syllable indicates the final note of the line. If there are syllables that follow this final note, they are sung on this final pitch. (The exception is the Introit mode 1 tone, where the final syllable is sung on a descending 3-note figure which is broken up if any syllables follow the bold syllable.) When there are three lines of text, you will see the mark for the “flex” (†). Here the singer should not sing the termination, but just pause briefly on the reciting tone and then continue singing.

The chanting of the psalms is a simple but delicate art. The text is sung lightly, in the manner of good speech, with a slight emphasis on word accents, just as you would speak them. At the beginning of a line you should sing with a slight acceleration, and at the end of the tone the singing should relax and coast naturally to a rest. At the asterisk (*) there should be a short pause of one to two seconds. This keeps the psalm from being rushed, adds a moment of repose and reflection, and adds much beauty to the singing of the psalms.

Conclusion

If you are discouraged at first, stay at it. You will learn quickly. The more you sing, the more expressive and driven your chant will become. Each chant will begin to take on its own personality over time. As a final reminder, never forget the purpose to chant: to proclaim the liturgical text with beauty and nobility.

The Simple English Propers was composed and edited by Adam Bartlett under the guidance of Fr. Columba Kelly, OSB as well as the guidance of many in the sacred-music community, and was engraved by Steven van Roode. It benefited from comments by hundreds of dedicated people at the ChantCafe.com and the forum at MusicaSacra.com, where this book was posted week by week in 2010 in a beta test that went live in parishes around the English-speaking world. The editions of music improved due to this “crowd sourcing” technique, and this led to a unique and tremendously successful experiment: the funding too was crowd sourced. The publishers are grateful to the many benefactors who contributed to make this edition possible.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

An effort such as this one could not have come into being without the cooperation and collaboration of a diverse range of people and events. Thanksgiving and glory are ultimately due to God alone, without whom this book would be an exercise in futility. But by the grace of God and under the guidance of the Holy Spirit the need for this collection was discerned and through the combined efforts of a dedicated group of people it was created.

I would like to thank our Holy Father Pope Benedict XVI for his vision for the renewal of the sacred liturgy, and of sacred music. It is his admonition that an authentic updating of sacred music is indeed needed in our time—one that grows organically out of the the great tradition of the past—that is compelling young composers to take up the task of adding to the Church’s treasure stores.

I would like to thank the faithful bishops, church leaders, priests and religious who are leading the new liturgical movement in our day, and who are tilling the soil for a deeply rooted renewal of the liturgy and of sacred music, especially Bishop Thomas J. Olmsted who has patiently shepherded his flock, of which I am a part, toward a more sacred and solemn celebration of the liturgy. And also Bishop Wall, Msgr. Moroney, Msgr. Wadsworth, Fr. Kline, Fr. Muir, Fr. Floridi, Fr. Lankeit, Fr. Chirovsky, Fr. Jalbert, Fr. O’Connor, Fr. Henry, Fr. Schmid, Fr. Bolding, Fr. Ramirez, the Phoenix Poor Claires, the Sisters of Mary Mother of the Eucharist, and the Sisters of St. Cecelia, who have all been an inspiration and a support.

I thank in a special way Fr. Columba Kelly to whom I am indebted for anything that is of value in this book, who has been a mentor, a guide, and an indispensable source of knowledge and wisdom for me in my pursuit of the art of Gregorian chant. And also to Fr. Samuel Weber for the use of his simple psalm tones in this collection. And to the monks of St. Meinrad Archabbey who have kept alive for many decades the liturgical chant tradition for future generations to experience and learn from.

I would like to thank the faculty and students of the Liturgical Institute of St. Mary of the Lake University, especially Fr. Douglas Martis and Dr. Denis McNamara, for their tireless work in the promotion of the liturgical apostolate and for their insights into authentic liturgical renewal.

Special thanks are due to the Church Music Association of America, and especially to Jeffrey Tucker, in collaboration with whom this project was conceived. Jeffrey has been a most patient and forward-thinking publisher, a close collaborator and a very good friend through the preparation of this collection. All of the readers of the Chant Café and the participants in the Musica Sacra Forum have offered indispensable feedback and criticism that has made this book what it is, and truly have made it possible. Thank you to Aristotle Esguerra, Jeffrey Ostrowski, Jeffrey Morse, Charles Culbreth, Arlene Oost-Zinner, William Mahrt, Richard Chonak, Christopher Berardi, Noel Jones and the many others who have given invaluable feedback and encouragement throughout.

A very special thanks to Prof. László Dobszay for his proposal of a formulaic method of singing the propers of the Mass in a simple style. And for his generous sharing of his wisdom and insights surrounding the problem.

Thank you to Steven van Roode, chant engraver par excellence, who has been a trusted collaborative companion over the many months that this manuscript was being prepared. And to Denys Powlett-Jones who contributed several needed translations for this book. And thanks to all of the volunteers who assisted in the compiling of the source texts and data for this book, and who reported errors and provided feedback through the beta process, especially Erik Paffet, David Deavy, Justin Adams, Greg Plese, Andrew Hinkley, Ernesto Gonzalez, and Chris Sarti. Thank you to the development community of the Gregorio chant engraving software, especially Elie Roux and Tracy Llenos, who have developed the most outstanding chant engraving software available.

Thank you to the choirs and schola cantorum of St. Joan of Arc Parish who have been the most willing guinea pigs and who have faithfully embraced the chant tradition and the liturgical singing of the propers of the Mass.

A special thank you to the sixty-four benefactors who funded this project during an online campaign of fourteen short days. Your willing patronage has made it possible to keep this book free of copyright restriction so that all will be able to use and share it freely.

Thank you to my wonderful wife for her patience throughout this process, and for her support and motherly care of our family. And to all family and friends who have been a constant source of encouragement and support, and to all who I have forgotten to mention, particularly those have supported this project in prayer.

Lastly, I thank the parish musicians throughout the English speaking world who are working to renew the sacred music tradition in practice, especially those who have supported and followed this project with interest. It is to you whom this book is dedicated, and for you that it was created. May your singing of the propers of the Mass give glory unto God and enrich and sanctify the faithful who you serve.

Ps 85 (84): 2–3a

O Lord, you have blessed your land, * you have put an end to Jacob’s captivity; you have forgiven the guilt of your people.

Psalm 85 (84)

1. You forgave the guilt of your people, * and covered all their sins.
You averted all your rage; *
you turned back the heat of your anger.

2. Bring us back, O God, our savior! *
Put an end to your grievance against us.
Will you be angry with us forever? *
Will your anger last from age to age?
3. Will you not restore again our life, *
that your people may rejoice in you?
Let us see, O LORD, your mercy, *
and grant us your salvation.

4. I will hear what the LORD God speaks; †
he speaks of peace for his people and his faithful, *
and those who turn their hearts to him.
His salvation is near for those who fear him, *
and his glory will dwell in our land.

Ps 72 (71): 10, 11

The kings of Tarshish and the islands shall offer presents; * the kings of the A-ra-bians and of Sheba shall bring gifts; all the kings of the earth shall adore him, all nations shall serve him.

Psalm 72 (71)

1. O God, give your judgment to the king, *
   to a king’s son your justice,

   that he may judge your people in justice, *
   and your poor in right judgment.
2. May the mountains bring forth peace for the people,* and the hills justice.
   May he defend the poor of the people, †
   and save the children of the needy,*
   and crush the oppressor.

3. He shall endure like the sun and the moon *
   through all generations.
   He shall descend like rain on the meadow,*
   like showers that water the earth.
   In his days shall justice flourish,*
4. and great peace till the moon is no more.

   He shall rule from sea to sea,*
   from the River to the bounds of the earth.
   Let the desert dwellers fall before him,*

COMMUNION

Qui mihi ministrat
Jn 12: 26

If a man would serve me, let him follow me; where-ever I am, my servant will be there too.

Psalm 17 (16)

1. O LORD, hear a cause that is just;
   pay heed to my cry.

   Turn your ear to my prayer:
   no deceit is on my lips.

   From you may my justice come forth.
   Your eyes discern what is upright.

2. My foes encircle me with deadly intent.
   Their hearts tight shut, their mouths speak proudly.

   They advance against me, and now they surround me.
   Their eyes watch to strike me to the ground.

   They are like a lion ready to claw,
   like some young lion crouched in hiding.
3. As for me, in justice I shall behold your face; *
when I awake I shall be filled with the vision of your presence.

COMMUNION (When the Gospel of Lazarus is read)

_Videns Dominus_
_W_

When the Lord saw the sisters of Lazarus in tears near the tomb, * he wept in the presence of the Jews and cried: Laz- a-rus, come forth. And out he came, hands and feet bound, the man who had been dead for four days.

Psalm 130 (129)

1. Out of the depths I cry to you, O L ORD; *
L ORD, hear my voice!

O let your ears be attentive *
to the sound of my pleadings.
2. If you, O LORD, should mark iniquities, *
   LORD, who could stand?
   But with you is found forgiveness, *
   that you may be revered.

3. I long for you, O LORD, *
   my soul longs for his word.
   My soul hopes in the LORD *
   more than watchmen for daybreak.

4. More than watchmen for daybreak, *
   let Israel hope for the LORD.
   For with the LORD there is mercy, *
   in him is plentiful redemption.
   It is he who will redeem Israel *
   from all its iniquities.

COMMUNION (When the Gospel of the Adulteress is read)

_Nemo te condemnavit_

_Jn 8: 10, 11_

_W_ Oman, has no one condemned you? * – No one,

_Lord. – Neither do I condemn you; go and do not sin again._

Psalm 32 (31)

1. Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is remitted.
   Blessed the man to whom the L O R D imputes no guilt, in whose spirit is no guile.

2. I kept it secret and my frame was wasted.
   I groaned all day long,

3. To you I have acknowledged my sin; my guilt I did not hide.
   I said, “I will confess my transgression to the L O R D.” And you have forgiven the guilt of my sin.

4. I will instruct you and teach you † the way you should go; †
   I will fix my eyes upon you.

5. Many sorrows has the wicked, † but loving mercy surrounds †
   one who trusts in the L O R D.

6. Rejoice in the L O R D; exult, you just! †
   Ring out your joy, all you upright of heart!

Y heart await-ed reproach and miser-y; * and I hoped for one that would grieve together with me, but there was none; I looked for one who would comfort me, and found no one. For food they gave me gall; in my thirst they gave me vin-e-gar to drink.

Psalm 69 (68)

1. Save me, O God, for the waters * have risen to my neck.

   I have sunk into the mud of the deep, *
   where there is no foothold.

   I have entered the waters of the deep, *
   where the flood overw-helms me.
2.  I am wearied with crying aloud; *
    my throat is parched.
    My eyes are wasted away *
    with waiting for my God.

3.  More numerous than the hairs on my head *

Psalm 22 (21)

1.  My God, my God, why have you forsaken me? †
    Why are you far from saving me, *
    so far from my words of anguish?
    O my God, I call by day and you do not answer; *
    I call by night and I find no reprieve.

2.  In you our forebears put their trust; *
    they trusted and you set them free.
    But I am a worm and no man, *
    scorned by everyone, despised by the people.
3. My heart has become like wax, *
it is melted within my breast.

For dogs have surrounded me; †
a band of the wicked besets me. *
They tear holes in my hands and my feet;

4. I can count every one of my bones. *
They stare at me and gloat.

Save my life from the jaws of the lion, *
my poor soul from the horns of wild bulls.

5. I will tell of your name to my kin, *
and praise you in the midst of the assembly;

“You who fear the LORD, give him praise; †
all descendants of Jacob, give him glory; *
revere him, all you descendants of Israel.”

6. All the earth shall remember and return to the LORD, † all families of the nations worship before him, * for the kingdom is the LORD’s, he is ruler of the nations.

They shall worship him, all the mighty of the earth; *
before him shall bow all who go down to the dust.

7. And my soul shall live for him, my descendants serve him. *
They shall tell of the LORD to generations yet to come,
declare his saving justice to peoples yet unborn: *
“These are the things the LORD has done.”

Bonum est Ps 92 (91): 2

Psalm 92 (91)

1. O LORD, how great are your works! *
   How deep are your designs!
   The senseless cannot know this,
   and the fool cannot understand. *

2. Though the wicked spring up like grass,*
   and all who do evil thrive,
   they are doomed to be eternally destroyed.*
   But you, O LORD, are eternally on high.

3. See, your enemies, O LORD, †
   see, your enemies will perish; *
   all who do evil will be scattered.

4. To me you give the wild ox's strength; *
   you have poured out on me purest oil.
   My eyes looked in triumph on my foes; *
   my ears heard gladly of their fall.
5. The just will flourish like the palm tree,*
   and grow like a Lebanon cedar.

Lessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God; * blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called sons of God; blessed are those who suffer persecution for the sake of justice, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

Psalm 126 (125)

1. When the LORD brought back the exiles of Sion,* we thought we were dreaming.
   Then was our mouth filled with laughter; *
   on our tongues, songs of joy.

2. Then the nations themselves said, What great deeds the LORD worked for them!"
   What great deeds the LORD worked for us!*
   Indeed, we were glad.
3. Bring back our exiles, O Lord, *
as streams in the south.

Those who are sowing in tears *

Ps 119 (118): 4, 5

OU have ordered that your commandments be kept dil-igently; *
O that my ways may be guided towards the keeping of your statutes.

Blessed are those whose way is blameless, * who walk in the law of the LORD!
Blessed are those who keep his decrees! *
With all their hearts they seek him.
They never do anything evil, *
but walk in his ways.

I will keep your statutes; *
do not ever forsake me.
How shall a youth remain pure on his way? *
By obeying your word.

I declared my ways and you answered me; *
teach me your statutes.
I have pondered my ways, *
and turned my steps to your decrees.
I made haste; I did not delay *

11

Here was a man in the land of Hus whose name was Job, * a blameless, upright and God-fearing man;

Satan asked to be allowed to tempt him, and the Lord gave him power over his possessions and his body;

and so, he destroyed his possessions and his children, and he ravaged his flesh with horrible sores.

Job 6: 2-10

1. Ah, could my anguish but be measured * and my calamity laid with it in the scales, They would now outweigh the sands of the sea! * Because of this I speak without restraint.

2. For the arrows of the Almighty pierce me, † and my spirit drinks in their poison; * the terrors of God are arrayed against me.

3. Does the wild ass bray when he has grass? * Does the ox low over his fodder? Can a thing insipid be eaten without salt? * Is there flavor in the white of an egg? I refuse to touch them; * they are loathsome food to me.

4. Oh, that I might have my request, * and that God would grant what I long for: Even that God would decide to crush me, * that he would put forth his hand and cut me off!

5. Then I should still have consolation * and could exult through unremitting pain, because I have not transgressed * the commands of the Holy One.

PRESENTATION OF THE LORD

Psalm 48 (47)

1. Great is the Lord and highly to be praised * in the city of our God.

   His holy mountain rises in beauty, *
   the joy of all the earth.
2. Mount Sion, in the heart of the North, *
   the city of the Mighty King!
   God, in the midst of its citadels, *
   has shown himself its stronghold.

3. Behold! the kings assembled; *
   together they advanced.
   They saw; at once they marveled; *
   dismayed, they fled in fear.

Ecce advenit

Cf. Mal 3: 1; 1 Chron 29: 12

Ehold, * the Sovereign Lord is coming; kingship, government and power are in his hands.

Psalm 72 (71)

1. O God, give your judgment to the king, *
   to a king’s son your justice,
   that he may judge your people in justice, *
   and your poor in right judgment.
2. The kings of Tarshish and the islands shall pay him tribute.

The kings of Sheba and Seba shall bring him gifts.

Before him all kings shall fall prostrate, all nations shall serve him.

3. For he shall save the needy when they cry, the poor, and those who are helpless.

He will have pity on the weak and the needy, and save the lives of the needy.

From oppression and violence he redeems their souls; to him their blood is dear.

Vultum tuum

Ps 45 (44): 13, 15, 16

Psalm 45 (44)

1. My heart overflows with noble words. †
   To the king I address the song I have made,
   my tongue as nimble as the pen of a scribe.

2. You are the most handsome of the sons of men, † and graciousness is poured out upon your lips,
   for God has blessed you forever more.
4. Gird your sword upon your thigh, O mighty one, *
with your splendor and your majesty.

In your majesty ride on triumphant † in the cause of truth, meekness, and justice. *
May your right hand show your wondrous deeds.

Glory be to the Father ...

OFFERTORY

Beata es, Virgo Maria

Lessed are you, O Virgin Mary, * for you have carried the Creator of the universe; you gave birth to your Creator and you remain a virgin for all eternity.

Psalm 45 (44)

1. Listen, O daughter; pay heed and give ear: *
forget your own people and your father’s house.

So will the king desire your beauty. *
He is your Lord, pay homage to him.
2. And the daughter of Tyre shall come with gifts; * the richest of the people shall seek your favor. The daughter of the king is clothed with splendor; * her robes are threaded with gold.

3. In fine clothing she is led to the king; * behind her are her maiden companions, brought to you. They are escorted amid gladness and joy; * they pass within the palace of the king.

4. Sons will be yours to succeed your fathers; * you will make them rulers over all the earth. I will make your name forever remembered. * Thus the peoples will praise you from age to age.

Let us all rejoice in the Lord * as we celebrate this feast day in honor of all the saints; it is a solemnity which causes the Angels to rejoice, and to praise together the Son of God.

Psalm 33 (32)

1. Ring out your joy to the Lord, O you just; *
   for praise is fitting for the upright.
   Give thanks to the Lord upon the harp; *with a tenstringed lute sing him songs.
   O sing him a song that is new; *
   play skillfully, with shouts of joy.

2. For the word of the Lord is faithful, *and all his works to be trusted.
   The Lord loves justice and right, *
   and his merciful love fills the earth.
3. By the word of the LORD the heavens were made, * by the breath of his mouth all their host.

bearing seed for the sowing;
they come back, they come back with a song, *
bearing their sheaves.

Glory be to the Father ...

COMMUNION (Option 2)

Primum querite

Mt 6: 33

VIII

S

Seek first the kingdom of God, * and all the rest will be given to you in addition, says the Lord.

Psalm 37 (36)

1. Do not fret because of the wicked; *
do not envy those who do evil.
Trust in the Lord and do good; *
then you will dwell in the land and safely pasture.
Better the few possessions of the just, *
than the abundant wealth of the wicked.
2. The Lord takes note of the days of the blameless; * their heritage will last forever.

They shall not be put to shame in evil days; *
in time of famine they shall have their fill.

By the Lord are the steps made firm * of one in whose path He delights.

3. Then turn away from evil and do good, *
and you may abide forever;

for indeed, the Lord loves justice, *
and will never forsake his faithful.

4. The unjust shall be wiped out forever, * and the descendants of the wicked destroyed.

The just shall inherit the land; *
there they shall abide forever.

Then wait for the Lord, keep to his way. *
He will exalt you to inherit the land.

Glory be to the Father ...
